

TRHS Hybrid Model Learning Protocols and Procedures for Students

Daily Routines

If you are in Cohort 1 and are planning to physically attend your classes on campus, follow this schedule:

- Monday: physically attend your A day classes (don't forget your mask)
- Tuesday: physically attend your B day classes (don't forget your mask)
- Wednesday: participate remotely in all of your A day and B day classes
- Thursday: participate remotely in your A day classes
- Friday: participate remotely in your B day classes

If you are in Cohort 2 and are planning to physically attend your classes on campus, follow this schedule:

- Monday: participate remotely in your A day classes
- Tuesday: participate remotely in your B day classes
- Wednesday: participate remotely in all of your A day and B day classes
- Thursday: physically attend your A day classes (don't forget your mask)
- Friday: physically attend your B day classes (don't forget your mask)

Attendance will be taken for every class period. If you are absent from a class period on a remote day, normal procedures for making up classwork will apply.

Behavior

The TRHS student handbook includes the Student Code of Conduct. Please refer to the handbook to be reminded of TRHS's general behavioral expectations. All school policies, rules, and expectations apply whether students are on campus or participating in a remote learning environment.

To keep us all safe, it is vitally important that you abide by social distancing, mask wearing, and hallway traffic directions.

Helpful Tips

Pay close attention to your Google Classrooms to follow course assignments, due dates, etc.

It is important to make sure your chromebook is charged and ready to be used each day.

Because your presence on the campus is limited in the hybrid model, don't hesitate to use email and/or Google Classroom to keep frequent communication with your teachers. Remember that teachers are willing to help and want to be supportive, but they are not available 24/7. If you reach out to a teacher with a question, be respectful of an appropriate response time.

Do your best to set up consistent routines and work spaces for yourself at home.

Practice good time management and work times free of distractions from your cell phone and/or other electronic devices.

Use a daily planner to be as organized as possible. Having a calendar of assignment due dates and a running "to do" list for yourself reduces stress.

Netiquette (Online Etiquette)

Follow the same standards of behavior you'd follow in the actual classroom.

Utilize the chat box in video-conferencing appropriately. It is there to be a helpful resource and for class-related questions.

Be sure to submit your work the right way. Pay attention to instructions on how and when you should turn in assignments. This will help both you and your teachers to stay organized and for you to get timely feedback and the most amount of credit possible.

Respect others' privacy. Recording live streams without permission is strictly prohibited and violates NH law. Do not take screenshots of classmates or their work and do not share class virtual meeting links.

Remember this is a change for ALL of us. Be forgiving with other people's mistakes and be patient as others learn. Be patient, kind, and respectful.

As always, you can count on Timberlane OWLS to:

Offer their best, Work cooperatively, Live responsibly, and Speak and act respectfully

Together, let's make it a great school year! GO OWLS!
